General Comment

Being able to trade options in an IRA offers one of the safest, most consistent and only ways of lowering your cost basis for long term holdings. They also offer returns unmatched in stock trading alone as they offer those with smaller accounts the opportunity to invest in higher priced stocks.

I have only begun trading options in the past couple years and have made great returns and grown my account using them. There have never been more opportunities for education in options trading available, and I cite tastytrade.com as an excellent example. This is a completely free resource, and will only grow to show more investors how to benefit from a product that they otherwise would not have heard of. We need to be able to use these products! I also am part of an investment club that emphasizes selling options as a safe way to conservatively add 12% to your account!

We need more freedoms in this country, not less. Let us do what we want with our money!

Thank you,

Jennifer R
